HER GRANDMOTHER
ROBBED OF $75,000

One of the largest jewelry robberies in many years was that of Mrs. James McMillan, widow of late United States senator from Michigan, at her summer home, Eagle Head, at Manchester-by-the-Sea, in Massachusetts, when valuables worth $75,000 were taken from the house. And it has become one of the most mysterious cases on which detectives have had to work. One agency was called off after another's investigation had been made.

Mrs. Preston Gibson, granddaughter of Mrs. McMillan, was with her at the time. Mrs. McMillan kept her jewelry in a safe near her room. Mrs. McMillan saved some $6000 worth of her jewels because she wore a $4000 pair of earrings and a $2000 necklace to bed. Detectives said they could learn nothing about the case, but a statement was made by a company which insured the valuables that $42,000 had been paid to Mrs. McMillan.

Taking of School Census of City to Commence Monday

HARRY E. BICKERS IS COMMISSIONED BY THE BOARD TO COMPLETE TASK.

Harry E. Bickers was last evening commissioned by the school board to take the annual school census of Pendleton and will begin on his work on Monday. With the aid of two assistants, he expects to conclude the census in two weeks. All children of school age, regardless of whether they are now in school, will be enumerated and the census will be the basis for the apportionment of the district receives from the per capita tax fund.

The board last evening awarded to Wilkes of this city the contract for improving the high school grounds, his bid having been lower than that of the Newport Land & Construction Co. Attorney C. H. Carter was instructed to draw up the contract and turn it over to Mr. Wilkes when satisfactory bonds are forthcoming.

R. W. Hatch was instructed to superintend the repairs ordered made to the roof of the grade school building, a report showing all three to be in need of a little attention. The clerk was instructed to apply to the city recorder for the privilege of a ten year term of the street improvements made on Alta street in front of the Field school property.

POLICE RAFFLED

After leaving Eugene Bartholomew went to Coburg where he was employed in a bookshop until patrons protested and he was discharged. His father, who lived near Coburg, recently died.

Mr. Schuren says that Rogers took his meals at Bartholomew's restaurant and that he delivered wood there.

Ex-Partner Is Sought
"Dad" Jensen was Bartholomew's former partner at Eugene. He is not being sought and may be able to shed some light on the mystery.

To bolster up further the police theory that Lind was all he claimed to be—a man of moderate wealth, honestly acquired, seeking to invest in Oregon farm property—is his general appearance, accented to be favorable and the fact that one of his first acts in Salem was to attend the missionary church of Rev. Mr. Ovalt.

Suspicious Ones Firm
Supporters of the contrary theory—that Lind was one of a pair of confidence men whose inquiries about property were prompted by questionable motives—do not flinch at the apparent religious turn of mind of at least one of the pair.

A crook might have used his religious pretensions—the simplest way to acquire confidence upon entering a strange community—for further his schemes," they assert.

Outside of his own assertions there seems but little evidence that Lind was the man of wealth he claimed to be and he may have used a small floating capital to present a good "front." Not that his clothes were modish or new, but he is supposed to have given an impression of a man who saves money by spending little on himself. The small capital would account for the renting of a cheap room for the two upon their arrival in Portland and their desire to do light housekeeping.

This would explode the robbery motive for the crime, but a "falling out among thieves" might be substituted.

Sibley Beats Solomon.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 22—Charles Sibley, holder of the three cushion billiard championship of the Pacific coast, easily defeated Henry Solomon, former champion, 50 to 25.
